

Zebra Wart

Haworthia reinwardtii

- I am a cute, shrubby succulent that varies in color from red-brown to green. I get my name from the little white markings ("warts") along my leaves.
- Although my growth season is winter, I crave at least 6 hours of bright, indirect sunlight a day. During the hottest months of summer, I'll go dormant and pause growing.
- Perfect for a beginner plant parent, I don't need much care - just set me on a sunny windowsill or in a pot with other succulents and I'll thrive!
